 This book is printed with the same types as were used for the Alexander de praeliis, and, until Campbell pointed out the error, used to be attributed to Ketelaer and Leempt. Both works are by an unknown printer and it has been suggested by Meerman that he probably worked in Haarlem. The date added by the rubricator of the present copy is important in fixing its order among the editions of this work. The earliest dated edition is that of Arnold Therhoernen, 29th Nov. 1477, and the probability is that the edition described above preceded it.

 First edition of this Chronicle, which must not be confounded with the Romance having the Cid for its hero. The prologue states that it is taken from a manuscript cotemporary with the Cid, and that Frey Juan de Velorado abbot of the house of Sant Pedro de Cardeña de orden y congregacion de Sant Benito was commissioned to have it printed. The request to obtain the privilege is dated 7 Oct. 1511, and is almost certain proof that this is the earliest edition. Mr. Grenville's (now Br. Mus.), Mr. Huth's and one other, are the only other copies known of this edition.

 A note on the back of the titlepage states that the printing of this work was commenced in 1783, and reached as far as pages 102 of the text, and 156 of the proofs, when it was interrupted. The note continues "on va la reprendre en cette année 1793, et on espère la terminer dans le courant de l'année prochaine". This hope seems not to have been fulfilled, for at p. 111 of the text and p. 229 of the proofs another commencement in a new fount of type is made, and the following notes explain the causes of the numerous interruptions. At p. 133 the editor states "Le tableau ci-dessus termine l'ouvrage de Mr. l'abbé de Douay . . . décédé à Arras le 19 septembre 1791. Ce qui va suivre a été compilé par une autre main pour compléter jusqu'en cette année 1819 la presente Généalogie dont l'impression commencée en 1783, interrompue en 1789 par la mort de la princesse de Béthune, . . . reprise en 1793, et encore interrompue par la conquête de la Belgique en 1794 . . . sera enfin terminée en 1819, au moins quant à la branche des marquis d'Hesdigneul". On p. 162 of the text the editor writes "l'auteur avait annoncé qu'il serait divisé en quatres livres; voici enfin l'impression du premier livre, commencée il y a 36 ans, terminée en 1819". He goes on to say that the MS. of the other three books is ready for the press, but concludes "on ne peut prévoir quand ce travail pourra se terminer".
